When you receive a “generic” registration, find out the first and last name of the person the registration is for. Generic registrations are not allowed, per DWD Security rules. We need to know who is using our system.

Also, whenever you become aware that two or more people are sharing a username and password, let them know that each person needs to have his or her own account in their own name. This is for the security and protection of the company’s information.

Contact Linda Williamson or Rebecca Powell to change the record behind the scenes from the generic name to the actual person’s name.

This is an example of an employer who chose the wrong county when registering.

When this situation occurs, changed the County/Job Center field to the correct one and put a note in the Staff Comments field.

These situations occur for a variety of reasons, but the common ones are that the employer chose Door instead of Dunn, or chose the county where the job opening is, not where the company is located.

This is an example of “any Job Center is the right Job Center”. The employer is located out-of-state, and is not in a border situation. The employer doesn’t say why she selected Rock County.

If Rock County staff determine that there is another office that would be a better choice for handling the registration, they can move it.
