

A.24 Order Responsibility (Transferring Job Orders)

In most instances, the Job Center that processes a job order will remain responsible for that job order. However, this may change, depending on the office handling follow-up for that job order. The office handling follow-up on a job order is determined by where the applications are being accepted. If the Job Center handling follow-up is different from the Job Center approving the job order, the order needs to be transferred. Please see Instructions for When and Where to Transfer a Job Order (make this a link) for instructions and examples.